Cookies

This site makes use of cookies. Cookies are messages given to a web browser (e.g. Internet Explorer) by a web site, which are then stored on your computer. A cookie's main objective is to identify users and personalise their visit by customising web pages. Web sites can only read cookies that have been deposited by that website. They cannot read cookies left by other websites nor can they read other personal information stored on your computer.

Using our on-line booking system, if you tick the 'Remember Me' box when you register, a cookie will be saved on your computer containing your log in information so that on your next visit to this site, your login will be done automatically.

If you don't click the "Remember Me" box, you can still login by entering your membership number and password manually. We recommend that you don't click the "Remember Me" option if accessing this website from a publicly available computer.

You can choose to disable cookies globally at any time through your browser, but this may prevent you from logging in to the members' area and we recommend that cookies are always enabled for our website (certain browsers will allow you to nominate sites which you will allow to use cookies if you do prefer to restrict their use).

Automatically recorded information

We may record information about the number of times this site has been visited and the IP (Internet Protocol) address of your computer. This does not contain any personal information about you, but allows us to analyse statistics about how popular parts of the website are. This will allow us to further develop the website.

Credit Cards

All credit card transactions are via a secure server.

Email Addresses

TRAM uses email to communicate with members booked on specific events and to advise members of forthcoming events, which are exclusive to email and the web and are not advertised in other forms of media. We also use email to advise members of updates, news, new events etc.

Our policy is to keep emails to a minimum and only communicate with members when we have something worthwhile to say. We will not subject you to Spam. We believe that this is a valuable service for members, allowing TRAM more flexibility in the type and lead-time for the events we offer. Should any member prefer not to receive such emails, please contact us. Members will also need an email address to log into the online database system and access some of the advanced features such as booking.

If you make an enquiry about TRAM and provide TRAM with your email address and / or mobile number, then we may from time to time send you emails or SMS messages to tell you about TRAM events that we think may be of interest to you. If you do not wish to receive emails or SMS messages from TRAM, then please tell us at the time of making your enquiry or contact us to let us know.

We may publish photographs and videos we have received from members in our newsletters, on our website and in publicity materials. As many photographs will be group shots it is almost impossible to ask permission of everyone shown in each photograph and indeed it is difficult to keep track of who sends photos to us of themselves and of other individuals on events that they have attended. It is, however, important to share the photos with other members who have attended the events and with new enquirers who want to know a little more about TRAM and what we do. We will, therefore, ensure that all photos used are in good taste and unlikely to cause offence. If, however, you see a photograph you would not like to be used please contact us with details and in the case of web photos we will remove them ASAP and in the case of printed materials we will ensure that the photo is not used in further print runs.

Information you can access

When a member logs onto the online booking system, it will display details of the members' current bookings as well as allowing members to change their password. This information can be accessed at any time whilst logged in by clicking the "My Details" button. With our enhanced security features, members will be able to access all of their personal information and advise us of change of address, contact details etc.
